

BLACK HORSE TROOP WILL ESCORT MARSHALL

Culver Military Academy Cadets to Parade as Bodyguard.

The Black Horse Troop, of Culver Military Academy, which has become widely known as the Vice President's bodyguard, will be the guard of honor for Vice President and Mrs. Marshall as they ride down the Avenue tomorrow morning.

The Black Horse Troop, consisting of eighty-five Culver Military Academy boys, mounted on jet black horses, accompanied Vice President Marshall in the inaugural parade four years ago.

The Culver Military Academy boys, 500 in all, arrived at the Capital yesterday morning at 7 o'clock. They are stopping at the Rabbit House.

A dress parade on the Monument Lot will be reviewed by Secretary of War Baker and several army officers this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Tomorrow evening a ball will be given in honor of Col. L. R. Gignilliat, superintendent, and the cadets. They will remain in Washington until Wednesday evening.

TREASURY EMPLOYEES TO MEET.

There will be a meeting of the Treasury branch of the Federal Employees' Union on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in Chamber of Commerce Hall, Twelfth and F streets northwest.

As three additional members of the board of representatives are to be elected and other important business is to be transacted, it is hoped that there will be a full attendance.

Without An Operation

Wonderful Healing of Rupture

How a New Jersey Man Got Rid of a Severe, Obstinate, Right Inguinal Hernia Without the Slightest Trouble.

Below is a picture of Eugene M. Pullen, a well-known carpenter of Manasquan, New Jersey. If you could see him at his work, particularly when he handles heavy timber, jumps and climbs around like a youth, you would scarcely imagine that he has formerly been afflicted with a rupture.

Ruptured in Right Side.

At an early age, Eugene Pullen was an express driver. He handled railroad baggage. One day after delivering a heavy trunk on an upper floor he felt a pain in the right groin. The suffering increased and it was not long before the young man noticed the swelling.

The doctor told young Pullen that he was ruptured and that he must either wear a truss throughout life or submit to a drastic operation. All surgeons knew that hernia operations, with anaesthetics, etc., are dangerous; they may end fatally. Moreover, it is a well established fact that many rupture operations are not successful; the bowel soon breaks through the sewed-up opening and protrudes worse than ever.

Afraid of Operation.

Like most others, Mr. Pullen declined to take the risks of an operation; the expense and loss of time had to be considered, too. Hoping he might get a little better encouragement, he went to another physician who, to his sorrow, gave him even less hope. It was pointed out to the young man that unless the rupture were perfectly held all the time or the surgeon's knife successfully used, he might expect an increase or doubling in the rupture with further complications, or the dreaded strangulated hernia which kills so many ruptured people.

Victim of Trusses.

The victim bought a truss, a hard, spring-like affair, the best he could get. It tortured him. He tried another—still no relief. He was compelled to give up his express business. The hard tasks of ordinary men were forbidden him. He became an insurance agent, in which position he did not need to do bodily work.

For six years Mr. Pullen dragged around, using various trusses, hard, elastic, etc., with never any permanent. One day his mother told him something she had just found out. It was a simple and easy thing for him to do. He lost no time.

Discarded His Truss.

Relief came at once; he almost forgot that he had any rupture. Afterward came a cure—a complete healing. Although years have passed and Mr. Pullen is an energetic carpenter, working on buildings, climbing over roofs, lifting lumber and such like, he is absolutely free from the old hernia. He knows he is completely, lastingly cured. There was no operation, no loss of time, no trouble, no operation, no contentment from the very outset. He is a strong, cheerful-minded man.

Valuable Information Free.

The valuable information which Mrs. Pullen read in a newspaper many years ago and gave to her son, together with further important facts, will be sent free to any reader of this who writes to Eugene M. Pullen, 369C Marcellus avenue, Manasquan, N. J., enclosing a stamp for reply. Mention the kind of rupture you have, whether on right or left side and what you have already done in your effort to cure it. A list of cases of all kinds of rupture in men and women, including inguinal (groin), femoral, navel, scrotal, etc., have been reported completely healed. Age seems to make no difference.

UNION STAFF JAMMED WITH INAUGURAL CROWD

Police Kept Busy Protecting Visitors From Throngs of Merely Curious.

Crowds who gathered to meet the inaugural parade at Union Station last night were so dense that a special detail of policemen was stationed in the waiting-room to prevent any, other than those with tickets, from passing through to the trains.

Trains, arriving from all parts of the country, were invariably from five to twenty-five minutes late. This was due, officials said, to a dense fog which had settled early in the day.

Culver Military Academy Cadets, of Culver, Ind., were the first of the military organizations to arrive. The Black Horse Troop of Culver again will act as Vice President Marshall's body guard. Others who came in the afternoon and evening were the body from Hamman Hall, Essex County (N. J.), Democratic committee, Fourth Pennsylvania Infantry, Oklahoma delegation, Delaware National Guard, St. Louis Republic's party, and the governor of New York and his party.

A. L. Sinclair, chairman of the inaugural public comfort committee, who was directing his workers at the station last night, said that while at times they had been rushed during the day, he did not believe so many people had arrived as on the same day last March 3. Unsettled conditions in the country and the seriousness of the international situation were advanced as the cause.

Visitors were treated to another surprise last night as they left the station. The Government Printing Office was etched with red, white, and blue electric lights, and in the center, outlined in electrical bulbs, was a map of the United States, over which was emblazoned, "Our Country" and in the same effect a portrait of President Wilson, under which was "Our President." The massiveness of the building made the picture striking and caused many to pause and admire it.

The big rush is expected this morning. A corps of some hundred attendants will be present to handle the crowds, however, and it is believed that everything will run smoothly. More than fifty of the leading detectives of the country reached the city in the morning and have scattered about the city to match their wits with crooks of international fame who have flocked here for the "big doings."

FETE VANGUARD HERE

At 12:45 o'clock the Presidential party will be escorted to its position in the parade which then will immediately move.

Robert N. Harper, chairman of the inaugural committee, and his corps of assistants were overwhelmed yesterday by minor details, such as requests for tickets, badges, and other favors, and the placing of their K. on work which was finished at the last minute. The committee worked late last night until they were satisfied that all arrangements had been carried out as planned.

Raymond W. Pullman, superintendent of police, was energetically looking after police arrangements yesterday and announced last night that every preparation had been made and that his hundreds of special policemen and out-of-town detectives were prepared for any emergency.

An additional corps of 50 leading detectives has reached Washington.

More Than 500 Permits.

More than 500 permits have been issued to street vendors by police in the First and Sixth precincts. This is declared to be but a small part of the tribe of novelty-dispensers expected by tomorrow.

Camped in church basements, old store-rooms, tents, and other places, 2,500 Boy Scouts from all parts of the East yesterday were marking time, awaiting the inaugural parade.

The arrival of many militiamen and other troops today will find the springing up of small tented cities in various parts of Washington, where the soldiers will be quartered.

The last drill practice before the inaugural parade was held by the Girl Scouts of Washington yesterday afternoon on the road south of the White House. The girls were inspected by army officers and instructed as to their part in the parade.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the famous Culver Cadets will be reviewed on the White Lot by Chief of Staff Hugh L. Scott and Secretary of War Baker. The cadets are under direction of Col. L. R. Gignilliat, superintendent of the school, and Maj. J. Q. Adams, U. S. A., retired.

San Francisco Naval Base Is Rejected by Conferees

The conferees on the naval bill last night out from the measure the provision for $1,500,000 for a naval base at San Francisco. The conferees must not be approved by both the Senate and House.

$150,000,000 Bond Issue Voted by Lower Chamber

The House, without a dissenting vote, last night passed a joint resolution authorizing a $150,000,000 bond issue to aid the President Wilson in pending war plans. The vote was unanimous. With this measure disposed of the House was almost ready to adjourn.

EXPRESS TRAINS STOPPED.

Paris, March 3.—An order prohibiting the running of all express trains in France, with the exception of those trains carrying mails and long-distance trains, has been published.

This action is taken to facilitate traffic connected with national defense and commercial traffic.

You Cannot Hide Your Fat

Overfatness is the one misfortune you can not hide from yourself or from those around you. If too thin, the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they can not conceal. There is one sure way to reduce your weight safely and quickly. The harmless Marmola Prescription, which changes the fatty tissues and fat-producing foods to solid flesh and energy, helps the general health and digestion, permits you to eat and live as you like, and leaves the skin clear and smooth. This famous prescription is now condensed into tablet form. Each tablet contains an exact dose of the same harmless ingredients that made the original prescription capable of reducing the overfat body at the rate of two, three, or four pounds a week, but one tablet after each meal and at bedtime until the normal weight is reached and the bodily health completely restored. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, or send to the Marmola Co., 584 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., and you will receive for 75c a full case—enough to start you well on your way to slimness and happiness.—Adv.

MAINTAINING GERMAN INFLUENCE IN AMERICA

Grand Jury May Be Recalled to Consider Fay's Escape.

(By the International News Service.)

Savannah, Ga., March 3.—Developments today in the investigation by Government agents here into the flight of Lieutenant Robert Fay from the Atlanta Federal prison indicate that Judge Emory Speer may be called upon to reconvene the grand jury.

It was learned today from authentic sources that secret service agents have been at work in Savannah since early in September and that the trail of the fugitive army officer led them to Jacksonville, Fla., Charleston and back to Savannah again.

One of the developments in the investigation is the report here that upon his arrival in Savannah on the night of August 30 Lieutenant Fay was met by friends and conducted to the home of prominent Germans here. He spent the night there and the following morning, after making known his identity, he crossed the river and went aboard the interned German steamer Hohenfels.

Government officials here do not deny the report that Lieut. Fay attended a dinner aboard the fugitive German ship. When secret service boats from Atlanta and Tampa reached here Fay had departed.

Responsible persons are said to have made statements that they can prove that Fay was feted aboard the German merchantman, and the German family who harbored Fay do not deny their participation in his escape.

"WAR" BILL BLOCKED

even should the President recommend it, I believe the measure violates the Constitution of the United States and that it would be destructive of one of the most important powers vested in Congress, the war-making power. I would not for a moment consider voting such extraordinary and dangerous powers into the hands of any President."

For more than four hours a Senate, worn and fatigued, and impatient under the tense excitement of the occasion, listened to the extraordinary and dangerous argument which the Missouri Senator read from manuscript. Senators were nervous and irritable. Crowded and excited galleries stirred uneasily as the argument proceeded and at times the Vice President was forced to threaten to clear the spectators from their seats. Extra guards were established at all of the entrances, as the Senate wore through the most memorable debate since the days of the civil war.

When Senator Stone concluded, the determination of the opponents of the bill to force delay became apparent. Senator Hitchcock, in charge of the measure, sought an agreement for a time for a vote. It failed. It forced to continue hours more of debate, all to be consumed by the opposition to the measure. Senator Cummins, of Iowa, objected. It was clear that the opponents of the armed neutrality bill, admittedly less than a dozen Senators, were prepared to talk through the night and to delay a vote to the dying hours of the Congress.

Behind this move lay the conviction of a group of Republicans that an extra session of Congress should be forced. With the big army appropriation bill, the sundry civil appropriation bill, the general deficiency bill, and the Military Academy appropriation bill, as yet unpassed by the Senate, and various other big measures in various stages of enactment, the Republicans believed that to prevent all general legislation, I might force the President to call Congress back.

No Session at Once.

But from the White House the word was passed to Senate leaders that no matter what routine legislation failed, the President would not call an extra session at once. The great question runs to July 1, and it was stated that an extra session, if necessary at all, would be delayed until as near that date as possible.

Republican Senators throughout the debate breathed war and defiance to Germany. Senator Fall declared that the armed neutrality bill was equivalent to a "limb not to be frayed about it then and declare war on Germany," declared Senator Reed, of Missouri.

"If the Senate wants my advice I'd declare war on Germany in fifteen minutes," Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut, declared that the German resumption of submarine warfare was a declaration of war against all the world.

"This is no time to deliver sermons on the mount to a nation some approach," declared, "Now is the time to give the President full authority to carry hostilities, already begun by Germany, to a successful conclusion."

"If this legislation should be permitted to fail the action of the Senate would be misconstrued abroad," declared Senator Sutherland, of Utah, "and I think it would be a crying shame. We ought to stand up for our rights, even if it leads to war. I have peace as much as the Senator from Missouri, but it must be a peace of honor and courage, not a peace of cowardice and craven surrender."

Insistence by Senator Jones, of Washington, that the resolution might as well name Germany, led to a heated discussion in which Senators Sutherland, Sterling, of South Dakota, and Nelson, of Minnesota, took part.

"Germany is not the only country which has forbidden our ships the seas," declared Senator Jones.

"Has Great Britain ever sunk one of our ships or done anything of the kind?" demanded Senator Sterling.

"Yes," shouted Senator Jones, reaching in his desk for a newspaper clipping.

Never Sunk a Ship.

"Why, Mr. President," broke in Senator Nelson, "the British have never sunk a ship. They have acted entirely in accordance with international law. They have blooped ships, examined their cargoes, and if they found contraband, sent them to prize courts."

"They have not sunk ships because they did not have to," replied Senator Jones. "I have no doubt they would do so did they think it necessary. The same sort of principle which caused the torpedoing of our ships by German submarines, and which led Germany to march through Belgium, caused Great Britain to starve the Greeks. Now the Greeks are neutral nation, but they are being starved by England and France, who have no more regard for her rights than Germany has for ours. Right now there are millions of Greeks starving."

Sensor Jones concluded with a statement that the thought it was the duty of Congress to remain in session during this crisis, and not to go back home after delegating war powers to the President.

"I am not talking of force an extra session, however," he said.

A caustic comment on the action of Chairman Stone, of the Foreign Relations Committee, in speaking four hours and fifteen minutes against the bill this afternoon, was voiced by Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, when Hitchcock was trying to obtain unanimous consent for a vote to some hour tomorrow.

"It becomes that side to speak of filibustering, when the majority leader has consumed the entire afternoon," he said.

"TAINTED" PROPERTY REJECTED BY WOMEN

Alleged Forger-Uncle Gave Both Gifts. Court Commends Action.

(By the International News Service.)

Chicago, March 3.—Two young women today turned back to the keeping of the Federal Court property they considered "tainted," and, in tears, heard Judge Landis command them.

Part of the property was intended for a dowry when Miss Olga Vrana should be married to Dr. Karl Kalbfleisch. It was given to her by her uncle, Robert L. Pitte, aged private banker, whose bankruptcy case now is pending before the court. His debts are said to be between $100,000 and $200,000.

"I didn't know my uncle had done anything wrong, but now that I have heard the truth, I want to give back what he gave me," Miss Vrana cried. "I have diamonds worth $500, which my aunt willed to me. I'll turn those back, too."

Judge Landis waved his hand.

"Never mind about the diamonds," he said. "They were your aunt's property and she evidently wanted you to have them."

At this juncture Mrs. Frank Ine came forward.

"I have a piece of property worth $500 my uncle gave me and I want to turn it over to the court," she said.

Pitte acknowledged to the court that he had forged mortgages for several years.

U. S. ARMY HEADS CALL FOR 21,750 OFFICERS

Reserve List to Be Swelled, War Department Officials Announce.

The War Department last night issued a call for 21,750 reserve officers of the United States army. This number probably will be secured within sixty days, the department announced, by the appointment of at least fifty reserve lieutenants and captains from each of the 435 congressional districts.

Less than 1,000 reserve officers of the line have been commissioned up to this time, but officials said this is due to the lack of understanding as to eligibility requirements. Reserve officers have no connection with the National Guard and under the law, they can be used only in volunteer regiments raised for war, or to fill war time vacancies in the regular army.

Girl in Her Nightie Is a Fugitive in Snow

Baltimore, March 3.—Clad only in her nightgown, a kimono and bedroom slippers, Miss Nellie Vickers ran through the snow, eluded and eluded by Hanover street early this morning, followed by "Archie" Stroebel, 29 years old.

Patrolman Frey stopped the chase, but when the young woman appeared before Justice Daly in the Southern Police Court to testify against Stroebel she was in a highly nervous state. She was then taken to Mercy Hospital in the police ambulance. Justice Daly fined Stroebel $15.

According to Miss Vickers, she was awakened shortly after 1 a. m. by loud knocking on her front door.

Putting on her bedroom slippers and a kimono she went to the door. When she opened it Stroebel rushed in. She said she tried to pull him out, and that when he did go he pulled her after him and then chased her.

New York Sleuths "Pluck" First Suspicious Character

Kenna and Casassa, two of New York's famous sleuths, last night gained distinction here when they arrested the first suspicious character of the inaugural period.

George Norman Johnson, 27 years old, who told the police that he lived at 807 Spring street, Richmond, Va., the city where Justice Crutcherfield handled police affairs, was the victim. The man was arrested in the lobby of the Raleigh Hotel. The detectives took him to police headquarters, where he was interrogated by Lieut. Hartley.

Later he was sent to the First precinct station, where he is held for investigation.

According to the police Johnson admitted that he had done time for burglary and had broken jail. He said that he was recaptured in Cincinnati.

SEEK TEACHER'S BODY.

Boston, Mass., March 3.—Search was made in the Middlesex Falls today for further traces of Paul C. Durrie, former school teacher at Paterson, N. J., whose clothing was found in the falls by Boy Scouts, together with letters indicating he might have committed suicide.

The Boy Scouts discovered clothing and a leather cigar case in which was $140 in currency. Durrie disappeared from the United States Hotel on January 17.

CHURCH ORGANIST SHOT.

Kansas City, Mo., March 3.—Edward Kreiser, organist of the Independence Boulevard Christian Church, built by millionaire P. A. Long, and well-known as a musician, was shot and fatally wounded in his home here today. He died three hours later.

Mrs. Kreiser was arrested and is said by the police to have admitted there had been a quarrel. Questioners were referred to her attorney.

PI CHIS CHEER WILSON.

With representatives from all over the country present, the Pi Chi Phi Fraternity held its fortieth annual convention last night at Capitol Park Hotel. H. Farrington Howard, the national president of the fraternity, presided and led three cheers for the President.

Other speakers were Robert Cole Winchell, national treasurer, and Heath Barry, national secretary.

TALK ON PROHIBITION BEFORE LOCAL CLUBS

Chevy Chase Citizens Play Sheppard Prohibition Bill.

Prohibition, with and without the referendum, was the subject of a lively discussion by the Federation of Citizens' Association, which met in the District Building last night.

It was the intention of the association to thrash out the problem of acceptance of the Sheppard bill as it went to the President, and notify him by telephone of their views on the subject.

Dr. Emory A. Bryan, speaking for the Chevy Chase citizens, flayed the Sheppard bill. The bill was defended by William McK. Clayton and others, who argued for the immediate signing of the bill by the President.

JUVENILE COURT BILL DIES AT THIS SESSION

The District Juvenile Court bill died a mournful death last night.

It drew its last breath in conference owing to the disagreement of the conferees. The hitch occurred when Representative Pinkham insisted that the clause in the bill giving the courts a right to place juvenile delinquents in homes of their own religious sects be retained in the bill.

This point, mainly, and other minor features under discussion by the conferees forced the bill to retire to the Congressional morgue, at least for this session.
